Chowan Female Collegiate Institute.

The Institution is located in one of the most healthful sections of eastern Carolina, and in a community distinguished for its moral character. It is established for holy purposes: to discipline mind; instrumentally, to sanctify mind; and then to direct its strengthened energies. The latter are regarded as of paramount importance, as transcendent talent, without moral culture, produces only evil. That system of education is, therefore, radically defective, which neglects the heart. The true system contemplates a symmetrical development of all the faculties —physical, intellectual, and moral—and has regard to the whole sum of our existence. Such a system we would have our own.

Course of Study.

The Institution is incorporated, and may be regarded as a permanent establishment, where young ladies can complete the most extended course of studies. It is divided into three departments: Primary, Academic, and Collegiate. Pupils are not admitted to the Academic Department until after ten, nor to the Collegiate until fourteen years of age, except in extraordinary cases. The Collegiate Department includes a course of four years. Those completing the full course, receive a diploma, bearing the seal of the Institute. In the work of instruction, thoroughness is regarded as of primary importance. The student is allowed to prosecute only a few studies at a time, and to advance no further than she can proceed intelligently; at every step evolving principles, and aiming at the cultivation of her reasoning powers. The solid branches receive the most attention. Ample provision, however, is made for the study of those of an ornamental character.

It will be seen that the various branches are so arranged, that each study is preparatory to the next, and that ample time is given to them all. Written analyses of the subjects studied are required daily. Three important objects are accomplished by this arrangement: the student improves her chirography; acquires greater facility in composition; and gains a more thorough knowledge of the subject studied.

The course is extensive, and it is so from the conviction that the age demands it. Woman is a centre of mighty influences. With her is, chiefly, the governing power. Her influence is felt in all the relations of life, and affects the character of the nation—affects the character of the world. Man moulds governments, but woman moulds man.

Partial Course, Incentives, &c.

Those wishing to pursue a limited course, can select such studies as they may prefer.

Incentives to diligence are furnished rather from the moral relations of the individual, and the obligations growing out of them, than from appeals to ambition and the hope of reward. The object is, to make the student feel her responsibility as a social and rational being, endowed with the power of doing both good and evil, and that it is obligatory upon her to strengthen her faculties, as a means of usefulness to others and of happiness to herself. A record of the recitations of each day is kept, and frequent reports of the standing of each student made to her friends.

Apparatus.

The Institution is furnished with unusual educational facilities. The Astronomical, Chemical, and Philosophical Apparatus is not surpassed by that of any institution of learning in the State. The young ladies are accustomed to use the instruments in performing illustrative experiments, and thus acquire a more practical knowledge of the branches studied. Astronomic observations are frequently made by the students, with a superior Achromatic Telescope.

Library, Reading Room, and Cabinet.

The Institute has a Library of choice works, which, together with the Reading Room, containing periodicals from different sections of the country, furnish, at present, sufficient reading matter. The Cabinet of Minerals is being rapidly enlarged, and will soon afford all necessary facilities in the study of Geology and Mineralogy.

Music Department.

Music is taught both as a science and as an art. The department is furnished with ten new and very superior pianos. Musical Soirées are held at regular intervals, at which all the advanced students of music are required to perform. There is also a large and valuable organ, for daily chapel services.

Literary Society and Periodical.

Connected with the Seminary is a Literary Society, composed exclusively of the young ladies of the Institute. A bi-monthly Periodical is established and read at the regular meetings of the Society.

Scientific Lectures.

Extensive Courses of Lectures are delivered on the premises of the Institute, accompanied by numerous experimental illustrations.

Religious Exercises.

The students are organized into Bible Classes, and are required to recite every Sabbath, either in the Institute or in one of the Sabbath schools of the village churches. They are also required to attend divine service at such place as their parents or guardian may prefer. The daily exercises of the Institute are opened and closed with appropriate religious services.

Visitors are not received on the Sabbath, except in cases of illness of their friends.

Board of Instruction.

The advantages resulting from so large a Board of Instruction are important. By this expensive arrangement the pupils can be properly classified. The younger are not discouraged by an association with the older students, while those more advanced are not retarded by being classed with pupils just commencing their course. There is also a division of labor, and teachers have time to prepare for their work. The most thorough instruction cannot be imparted, where a teacher is required to give attention to many different branches.

Government.

The government is vested in the Principal and his colleagues of the Faculty. It is regarded as of primary importance that the student be induced to act from principle, rather than from fear of punishment—to do right from a love of right. The discipline is mild. Every effort is made to reclaim the erring, by kindness and private appeals to the reason and conscience; if these efforts fail, the student is privately removed from the Institution. No young lady will be allowed to remain in the Seminary, whose example tends to encourage indolence or insubordination, or whose influence is in any respect of an unfavorable character.

The students are amenable to the laws of the Institute, during the whole period of their connection with it. Those from abroad are not allowed to make nor to receive visits, nor attend any exhibition, without permission from the Principal.

In going abroad, they are accompanied by the teachers. They are not allowed to open accounts with merchants, without permission from their parents or guardians, and all purchases must be approved by the lady with whom they board.

They do not visit the stores nor the post office, but obtain goods through the agency of friends. All letters received pass through the hands of the Principal; and where there is suspicion of a clandestine correspondence, the letters are enclosed to the parents or guardians, without examination.

Uniform.

In order to form habits of economy and prevent rivalry in dress, a uniform is prescribed for Sabbaths and holidays. For winter, deep blue merino, or other suitable fabric; for summer, pink calico, ginghams, or white cambric, or muslin. The bonnet, straw, trimmed with blue for winter, and pink for summer. On ordinary occasions, any dress may be worn not more expensive than the uniform. Jewelry is not allowed to be worn by the students.

Sessions and Vacations.

There are two sessions of five months each, commencing on the second Wednesday in October and March. There are two vacations; the first, from the last Thursday in July to the second Wednesday in October; the second, from the 25th of December to the first of January.

Examination and Commencement.

Monthly examinations are held, which are open to the immediat friends of the students, as are all the daily recitations.

The collegiate year is closed by a public examination, and the Commencement exercises of the graduating class.

Students will be received at any time. It is earnestly recommended, however, that young ladies enter at the commencement of the session, as a tardiness of a few days often embarasses the pupil throughout a whole term. No deduction will be made for a late entrance, unless it be two months after the opening of the session. After entering, no deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of protracted illness, when one-half the bill will be remitted.

There are two reasons for this: first, arrangements for teachers can be made only by the session or the year; second, so important to the pupil is early and constant attendance, that we wish to employ every means to secure it.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to bring nor remove young ladies on the Sabbath.

Physical Exercise.

Equestrian exercise is provided for the young ladies, on the extensive premises of the Institute.

Callisthenics are taught daily. The importance of these exercises, as means of promoting health and physical refinement, need not here be urged.

The students are also required to take regular exercise in the open air. The site of the new edifice includes twenty-eight acres, and affords an extensive Campus with ample range for the young ladies, without going abroad. The new building is warmed by Hot Air Furnaces, the advantage of which to health, in securing constant ventilation, will be appreciated by those acquainted with it. Apartments are also fitted up expressly for warm and cold bathing; and ample provision made for physical exercise during inclement weather.

To those living near the railroad, Murfreesboro' is most accessible by the way of Weldon. Passengers should stop at Boykin's Depot, on the Seaboard and Roanoke Railroad, twelve miles from the Institute, where a regular conveyance will always be found.
